The Big Picnic Fairlawn Park Thursday Aug. 3

The Coshocton Retail Merchants Association Working Day And Night To Have Everything In Readiness To Royally Entertain The People of Coshocton County And Adjacent Territory

Preparations for the First Annual Farmers' and Merchants' picnic, at the Coshocton county fair grounds, Thursday, August 3, under the auspices of the Coshocton Retail Merchants Association are going merrily forward.

Enthusiasm Contagious

There is to be no slackening of the speed that the promoters have developed, nor is there any sign of a weakening of their enthusiasm. On the other hand there is every indication that their enthusiasm is contagious and that it is affecting favorably the people of county and town.

Thursday, August 3

On Thursday, August 3, the retail merchants will have speakers on agriculture and commerce; band concerts, morning, afternoon and evening; motorcycle and horse races, ball games, etc., in the afternoon.

Everything Free

Admission to the grounds will be free, seats in the grand stand will be free, the track events, ball games, band concerts will all be free and there will be ice cold lemonade and hot coffee free all day long.

DEUTSCHLAND MAY SLIP OUT LATE TONIGHT

BALTIMORE, JULY 17.—The German submarine freighter Deutschland now plans to slip down the Patapsco river and into Chespeake bay tomorrow at the present rate. Captain a member of the crew said today

Loading should be finished tomorrow at the present rate. Captain Hinsch of the firm backing the U boat gave corroborative indication that the trip is at hand when he announced no visitors will be permitted to board the vessel after tomorrow.

Captain Hinsch said he expects the Bremen in a few days, and that she will come here or to New York, tho he indicated Baltimore would be the port.

Fear of spies and bombs seemed to be strongly upon the crew and managers of the Deutschland today. The vigilance of the past week has increased. Even police officials who had been permitted free entrance to her pier were barred by a special watchman who also headed off messengers and mail carriers.

All night powerful searchlights on the tug Timmons played nervously over the waters to pick up launches and to search the shore for unwelcome watchers.

Raid Distillery At Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE, OHIO, JULY 17.—Forty-five barrels of whiskey, said to have been the property of John Lloyd, and valued at about $4,500, were confiscated by the city and county authorities, following a raid on the Lloyd distillery, located on the street car line, Woodwaln avenue, Monday morning. Five large drays were used by the autorities in hauling the whiskey away and a portion was stored in the Central hose house, while the remainder was placed under lock and key in the court house.

The liquor was confiscated under a search warrant issued from Mayor Gang's court Saturday on information furnished by Prosecutor Moore, and the officers taking part in the raid were Chief Long, Sheriff Heskett, Deputy Stewart and Patrolman Gilmore. They visited the distillery late Saturday evening and satisfied themselves that the liquor was in one of the buildings, but no attempt was made to get it until Monday morning when the four officers returned. Mr. Lloyd was found in one of the buildings.

Prosecutor Moore stated Monday, following the raid, that he had nothing to give out at present concerning the raid, except to say that he intended to do all he could to discourage the traffic and prosecute those who violate the law, and did not think any one had a legal right to have that amount of intoxicating liquor under circumstances existing when this was received.

It was stated that the liquor was shipped to Cambridge from Zanesville on Friday of last week.

TROOPS LEAVE MEXICO SOON?

EL PASO, TEX, JULY 17.—Reports that General Pershing and his entire punitive expedition would be out of Mexico within 30 days were revived today with the announcement that construction of a base base camp has been started at Deming, N. M. 35 miles north of Columbus.

Start New Base Camp

Army officers, in discussing the new camp, openly intimated their belief that it presages a return of the Pershing expedition to United States soil. The official explanation of the new camp base is that it is to be for militia sent to the border and to be a secondary base for Columbus.

It is understood that the camp is to have accommodations for [illegible] men. A major, who is an expert on camp location and construction, has been placed in charge of the work and is assisted by more than a regiment of men laying the site.

Rainy Season At Hand.

"The Pershing expedition will have to come out within the next two weeks, or remain thru the rainy season," said a staff officer today. "If the rain catches [illegible] will not be able to move its provisions. The government [illegible] to

Richard Furnell Funeral Today

Funeral services for Richard Furnell will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Furnell home on Cassingram avenue with Rev. D. C. Boyd officiating. Interment will be made at Oak Ridge cemetery.

At an inquest held by Coroner Marshall Monday afternoon, Furnell's death was found due to an unavoidable accident. It was testified that Kenneth Westfall, who was driving the auto which struck Furnell causing death, was driving slowly at the time and was in no way responsible for the accident.

Ida M. Tarbell To Lecture At Coshocton Chautauqua

WHEN the Chautauqua brings to our city attractions of such commanding merit as Ida M. Tarbell, associate editor of the American Magazine, perhaps the most noted woman publicist of the world, it demonstrates anew its right to be classed with the great educational influences of America.

Miss Tarbell needs no introduction. Her works have preceded her and endeared her to the thinking people of this country. A forceful writer, a constructive thinker, a seer of visions and a doer of deeds. Miss Tarbell has won her place in the affections of all true Americans. When her researches led her on to the trail of corporate business years ago she did not hesitate to say the words that were then unpopular and to point out, with the vision of a prophet, the rocks ahead of the business bark of America if certain tendencies were not corrected. She believed and she had courage to express her convictions that no true democracy could exist where an autocracy of wealth held individual endeavor at bay. Strangely enough for once a prophet has received honor in his own country, and Miss Tarbell is today recognized as a foremost exponent of the propaganda of business justice which is remaking America.

In her lecture on "Industrial Idealism," which she will deliver at the Chautauqua, Miss Tarbell will discuss a subject with which she is thoroughly familiar, and you will be impressed by the absolute fairness of her deductions. Her sympathies are with the worker, but she makes plain her belief that the men who are helping to solve the workers' problem are the employers.

America's Most Noted Woman Publicist.

Mr. And Mrs. Edward Nash And Son Alive And Well

Fears for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nash and their son Edgar were allayed Sunday morning when it was learned that the trio had camped out all night near Rock Run. When they did not return Saturday night after the rainfall set in and their empty auto was found on the Brown farm, neighbors became alarmed and notified the police. Searching parties were organized and spent considerable time in an effort to locate the missing trio.

British Troops Storm And Take German 2nd Line

General Haig Says English Troops Now At Edge Of Martinpuch Village--Kaiser At Front As His Men Retreat--Germans Mass Army In Defence Of Kovel

LONDON, JULY 17.—British troops stormed and captured German second line positions for 1500 yards in a continuation of the steady drive north of the Somme river, General Haig reported this afternoon.

The advance was made northwest of Bazentin-le-Petit woods, which is now in the hands of the British, and presses the British line forward to the very edges of Martinpuch village, one of the German strongholds defending Bapaume, the immediate objective of the British offensive.

The German war office admitted this afternoon the British have made further progress toward the important highway town of Pozieres, penetrating Oviliers wood, sothwest of Loziers, where heavy fighting contines.

The Berlin official statement reported lively fighting west of Peronne, the objective of the French armies tho the French war office was silent on the French operations south of Somme.

Reports of the new British successes only slightly overshadowed the news of allied victories on the eastern front. The German war office this afternoon officially admitted that General Von Linsingen's right wing in Volhynia had been compelled to retreat behind the Lipa river. The Russian war office reported the capture of 13,000 prisoners in yesterday's fighting in Volhynia.

OCEAN ALIVE WITH SHARKS SAY SAILORS

Sailors See Schools of Sharks Several Hundred In All Nine to Twelve Feet Long

SEE SHARK DRAW MAN DOWN TO HIS DEATH

Never Has There Been Such A Scourge of The Man-Eaters, Say Seamen

NEW YORK, JULY 17.—The captain of the British steamer Merioneth, in today from Gibraltar, reports that on July 6 and on succeeding days he and members of the crew sighted sharks ranging in length from 8 to 12 feet, in large schools.

Ocean Alive With Sharks.

The American steamer Charles Beatty, which reached here from Tift Cove, N. F., reports the ocean alive with sharks. Captain Seely says he never saw so many sharks. From fifty miles east of Fire Island to port, he says, he saw schools of sharks, probably several hundred in all, from 6 to 12 feet long.

Captain Meyer of the Dutch steamer Beukelsydk, from Rotterdam, also reports sighting sharks in large schools.

SHARK SEIZES SEAMAN.

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 17.—Survivors of the sunken steamer Ramos, which were brought to this port last night, said today that one of the two men lost while a lifeboat was being launched last Wednesday in the storm off North Carolina, was drawn under the water by a shark, schools of which, they said, were sighted by the crew.

Saw Schools of Sharks.

Captain McGoldrick and eight other members of the crew who were in one of the three lifeboats have not yet been found and it is feared they may have fallen victims of sharks.

The fourteen men who told of their rescue by the steamer Jose after drifting in open boats from Wednesday to Friday today gave additional details of the wreck of the Ramos and their rescue.

Saw Shark Get Man.

Peter Ostra of New York, first officer of the Ramos, was quoted today as saying that one of the life boats was capsized as it was launched and that one of the seamen, Harry Hinchman, was caught by a shark and disappeared from view.

"I saw the shark dart up and get him," Ostra is quoted as saying. "You see all our provisions had been washed overboard and brought the big fish around in hordes. The sharks were so thick in the water that we had difficulty at times in rowing."

Ostra was of the opinion that the lifeboat in which were Captain McGoldrick and eight men was overturned by sharks.

Marlatt Child Is Injured

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Marlatt, of North Eighth street, was rendered unconscious Sunday afternoon, when she was struck by a heavy piece of iron. A severe wound was inflicted on the child's head, but otherwise the accident did not result seriously.

BOY BREAKS ARM.

Lyon Campbell, of South Eighth street, received a Colle's fracture of the right arm when he fell from a ladder last night while at play. Dr. T. W. Lear reduced the fracture.

KAISER VISITS FRONT IN HOPE OF CHECKING DRIVE

Kaiser Wilhelm was at the Somme front when his army retreated under battering British blows in Saturday's fighting, it became known today.

An official statement issued at Berlin confirmed previous reports of the kaiser's presence on the front of the great Anglo French offensive, where he has been visiting his troops and inspiring them to a more stubborn defense.

The Berlin statement said that the kaiser conferred with his chief of staff and commanding genrals, visited the hospitals and conferred several iron crosses.

New Details of Attack

Press dispatches from the British front today brought new details of the successful attack on Saturday, in which the woods of Belleville and Bazentin Le Petit were captured and the British at one point penetrated enemy third-line trenches.

These dispatches showed that the British advance carried the forward lines to the outskirts of both villages of Pozieres and Martin Puich, two of the most strongly defended German posts before Bajaume.

The assault was begun just before daylight. It followed an artillery attack which, for intensity, if not duration, exceeded the bombardment which marked the beginning of the Anglo-French offensive two weeks before.

Fought in Cellars

British guns blotted out enemy works, leaving only ruined redoubts from behind which German machine gunners raked the attackers until blown to pieces by bombs.

The fighting for Longueval on Friday was a bitter battle for underground works and cellars. "In some of the cellars Germans fought like wolves at bay," wired one correspondent.

"Down in the darkness of those places men fought savagely, seeing only the glint of each other's eyes and feeling for each other's throats, unless there were still bombs handy to manke a quicker ending. It was primitive warfare. Cavemen fought like that in such darkness, tho not with bombs, which belong to our own age."

GERMANS MASS ARMY IN DEFENSE OF KOVEL

PETROGRAD, JULY 17.—Profoundly impressed by the steady Russian advance which see-saws first at this point and then at that, the Germans are massing enormous forces before Kovel. They are bringing up every available reserve in the hope of stalling the new Russian mowing machine.

The present comparative calm is deemed here to be a mere prelude to a resumption of heavy and important fighting.

Would Disrupt Plans

The fall of Kovel now would be a staggering blow to the Central powers, completely disrupting their plans. Lemberg would be menaced more than ever, the road to the great fortress of Brest Litovsk opened, and the rear of the entire Pinsk region threatened, necessitating the Germans withdrawing.

The Russians apparently do not lack ammunition. Printed on the cartridge case are the phrases: "Don't spare bullets. Don't spare courage. There's enough aplenty for all."

Take Fewer Prisoners

Cossacks from the Urals and fresh young giants from Siberia and elsewhere are fighting like gamecocks, striving to outdo each other in daredevil charges. Their quarrel with the Germans is now personal owing to the German's use of liquid fire and gas. Consequently fewer German prisoners are taken in proportion to the number dead on the field.

Russian officers appear satisfied not only with the situation on the Russian front but with the spirit of the troops, which they declare was never higher.

Canadian Auto Party At Keene

Mr and Mrs Joseph Stonebocker and family of Alberta Canada, are camping on the Pew farm a mile south of Keene. The Stonebockers will be in camp on Friday and Saturday and will be pleased to meet old acquaintances particularly members of Co. H. 11th O. V. I. They are touring the states in their auto.

NEW BABY.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lutz of Conesville, Saturday night.

Ulrich Goes To Works Today

William Ulrich of Tyndall pleaded guilty Monday when arraigned before Mayor H. L. Richardson on a charge of stealing chickens from Mrs. Mary Shearn. The chickens were valued at $1. He was assessed $200 and costs amounting in all to about $215 and was to be taken to Canton today to work out the amount. Without deduction for good behavior the fine would keep Ulrich busy for almost a year. With good behaviour, he will spend about seven months behind the bars.

Mt. Vernon Bites The Red Sea Mud Sunday

Well, "Moses" [illegible] colored his "Children" safely [illegible] the Red Sea game Sunday to [illegible] promised land (victory). Just as [illegible] not be would, but spared to open [illegible] pocket. It was some game.

Of course, it is [illegible] that an errant throw of the wet sponge in the seventh inning won [illegible] for Coshocton, but in base [illegible] as in other games, there is many a slip between the ball and home [illegible]. A dandy wallop of the pill in the seventh by Unger put the game [illegible] the Feds' won column.

The Federals [illegible] their three scores in the lucky seventh and the Mt. Vernon boys [illegible] their lonely tally in the fourth.

To tell in few words how the runs were made by the Federals. In the seventh Jones came to bat rolled one into the diamond [illegible] to first and then to second where the Knox county pitcher threw the ball over Porter's head. Sondles at bat drove the ball to faraway center and Jones took third. Unger at bat next drove a ball to the outlot scoring Jones and Sondles.

Unger landed at second and took another on a sacrifice by Smith, and scored a moment later on a passed ball. Clark hit to right. The Knox pitcher retired in favor of Bonds. Darr drove out to pitcher. Payne rolled one to second where Clark was tagged, ending the inning.

The Mt. Vernon boys made their run when Mills made a clean hit to left garden. Popejoy advanced Mills to second by a sacrifice. Mills went to third when Cohen let Thompson's grasscutter get by. Bonds scored Mills by a single to right, Thompson going to third. Porter landed on the pill for a husky wallop but Sondles made a fine run and pulled the flying ball down and shot it to second killing Bonds and ending a tense situation and the inning.

Next Sunday the Dennison P. H. A. C. team comes to the Red Sea and they will be here to win the game, so says rumor. The Feds won at Dennison when they were the attraction at the park opening, but the Dennison boys say they were not in shape, being the first game of the season for them. Come out expecting to see a lively tussel.

On Sunday, July 20, a Canton team comes to battle the Feds. Advance dope is to the effect that the team has a habit of winning about nine out of ten games played. Will they win here?

Appended is the score of the Mt. Vernon-Federal game:

Hits With The "Bean Ball"

Leading the Southern league in team batting doesn't seem to get the Little Rock team anywhere. The so-called Travelers are locked in the cellar.

Major league base stealers will have an excellent chance to overtake Ty Cobb—if Ty makes good his threat to retire from the game.

The full name of Third Baseman Betzel, of the St. Louis Cards, is Christian Frederich Albert John Henry David Betzel. Many a man is interned in Canada for less than that.

First half winners in leagues where the season is divided include: Dayton in the Central league, Augusta in the South Atlantic league and Asheville in the North Carolina league.

With so many of our very best tossers drawing suspensions for rough stuff during the cool days it is to be hoped that the hot weather will lay off for the remainder of the season.

When it is remembered that every first-class "boner" ever pulled in the big show took place at the Polo Grounds, it's easy to answer the question, "What's the matter with the Giants?"

Ray Caldwell's work has shown a big improvement of late. With Ray going right and Cullop burning up the league, the Yankees are going to fight like the dickens to stick around up there.

It is said the Cleveland Indians are willing to [illegible] some other team lead the league for a while so they can prepare for the great drive later on. But the Indians had better watch their Ingersolls closely and catch the correct time to start.

Evidently Henri Rondeau is another one of those pastimers who look like a million dollars outside the big yard. After several trials in the major leagues the Frenchman is once again with the Minneapolis Millers.

Willie O'Connor, mascot, is making the Western trip with the Braves for the first time since the 1911 season. If Willie succeeds in chasing the wimp as well as he did in 1911 the Braves are the next world's champs.

Manager Charley Herzog of the Reds missed a fine chance to create some amusement akin to a regular "laff." He should have protested that the "bean ball" was injuring his players.

The St. Louis Cards have been running true to form in every department of the game—seventh in league standing, seventh in team batting and seventh in team fielding.

John McGraw, the Giants' boss, employs an effective tho heartless method to make his pastimers behave. He threatens to trade 'em to St. Louis.

The hitting and fielding of the Detroit Tigers this season have given good value, but a large share of their pitching has come dangerously near to cheating.

Peeved at the showing of the Pirates, a Pittsburg scribe says: "Honus Wagner can't take care of the entire field and bat in all of the runs for the team. As the Old Wonder has been accomplishing this very trick for years past, he will surely be going back."

City subscribers should insist on a receipt from the carrier.

Pottery Teams Play Ball Game

The warehouse and the decorating rooms of the Pope-Gosser pottery were represented in a baseball contest at the Red Sea diamond Monday afternoon. The score was one-sided, the decorators winning out by a score of 15 to 7. Stoker for the decorators allowed but one hit up to the seventh inning. Batteries were Stoker and Gross for the decorators; McCann and Howe for the warehouse men. McCann was the star for the latter aggregation allowing four hits and annexing a three bagger for himself.

"DIS AIN'T NO PLACE FER A LOIDY," SAID KID

So He Escorted Her Out of Hell's Kitchen.

One stormy winter [illegible] was a good best kid story [illegible] in Hell's Kitchen, [illegible] woman writing in the New York [illegible] I knew [illegible] west of Tenth [illegible] the forties and [illegible]

His mother [illegible] young Irish [illegible] her hip [illegible] skirts. She was [illegible] shut up in an empty [illegible] wouldn't she [illegible] his hide when she got her hands on him again, though!

She didn't get her hands on him again. Weeks after they brought him back to her from the river. But that isn't the story.

I started for the freight yards. It was after 9 when I went over the little iron foot bridge [illegible] in the air over the puffing engines and groped around over tracks and lanterns to the yard master's house.

"It's a pretty rotten place for a woman to go through alone this time of night," he told me, when I started back. "Better wait, and one of our boys will take you over."

But I didn't want to wait. New York always seems a safe place if you go along quietly and mind your business. So I struck out alone down Eleventh avenue.

Suddenly I heard a hoot. More followed, with cat calls and jeers.

There was a saloon, with barrels outside, and on every barrel top was a hoodlum. Somebody jostled me. Snowballs began to fly. Some men standing in a doorway laughed.

All at once a youngster slid up beside me and looked me in the face. He was ugly and older than New York's [illegible], that kiddie of Hell's kitchen. He grinned and locked his arm in mine.

"Get out, all of yous!" he yelled forth valiantly. "She ain't nothin' new. She's me teacher."

When we got to the corner of Ninth avenue he let me go, but not without a warning:

"Don't go out chasing like dis no more, see? Youse may be all to de good, but it ain't no place for a loidy."

"GET OUT!" YELLED THE KID.

FREED HOOF JUST IN TIME.

Another Minute and Traveler or Trestle Would Have Been Lost.

With a fore leg of his horse caught in a trestle of the Southern Pacific across the Mammoth wash, just across the Colorado river, within a few hundred miles of the end of a 2,250 mile journey, William L. Gilleland almost decided that the end of the long trip was at hand.

"It was thrilling since I had timed the trains expected across the span and knew that it was a matter of minutes in getting the animal free or being crushed to death by a limited train that was almost due," he said as he told the Los Angeles Times of some of the incidents of his long horseback ride from Sheridan, Wyo., to Los Angeles.

Gilleland says it was an anxious hour when he was forced to move first one leg and then another of his horse to the different ties in an endeavor to extricate the hoof which had been caught in a peculiar manner. "As the moments passed and effort after effort proved futile I began to count the moments to the end, when suddenly the horse tipped to one side, gave a little lurch and was free," he said. "It was then a race to where it was possible to jump from the trestle and only a few moments after the fast train, speeding along at a terrific rate, tore past."

Court Versus Committee Law

By ALAN HINSDALE

One night John Arbuckle, while peacefully sleeping in his home, surrounded by his family—a wife and several little children—was awakened by a loud rap at his door. Going downstairs, he opened the door and by the light of a full moon saw a dozen men, [illegible] covering him with a revolver.

"What's become of your clerk, Tom Bowles?" asked the spokesman.

"I don't know. He left me without a word as to where he was going or why."

"That story won't go down with us. You were heard the day before he disappeared to accuse him of robbing you."

"I did not accuse him of any such thing. He was my bookkeeper, salesman and general utility man. He had so much to do that he got the books into a muddle. I was vexed and told him that he might as well have robbed me. As I said the two last words Cy Jenkins came into the store and heard them and saw me looking angrily at Tom. Afterward I apologized to Tom, and he seemed perfectly satisfied. The next day he disappeared."

"Very plausible," replied the spokesman. "How do you account for blood on a towel found in Bowles' room?"

"There's nothing in that. Bowles was cutting some meat for a customer and the knife struck his finger. He went to his room to stanch the blood."

"John Arbuckle, your explanations are mighty thin. You were heard accusing Tom Bowles of having robbed you. The next day he disappeared without a word of information as to where he was going. If you was in the eastern country where such cases as yourn drag along for months, you'd probably get a lawyer who would prove that you never saw Bowles. In this country we take things as they are; there ain't no lawyers to throw dust in our eyes. Come along."

By this time Mrs. Arbuckle and the children had come downstairs and despite their clinging to the husband and father he was hurried away.

"I'll make you men pay for this," he said. "Every one of you."

"You'll have to come back from kingdom come to do it," was the cold reply.

They took their prisoner to a tree and were about to hang him when a man rode by and asked what was the charge against him. When told he said that about the time indicated he had met Bowles early one morning walking on a road leading southward. The informant couldn't remember the date, but he judged it was about a month before.

The committee had started in to hang a murderer and did not relish being turned from their purpose, but several of their members insisted on an investigation of Bowles having been seen going southward and after a long dispute it was determined to put him in jail till this could be done. He was therefore lodged in a cell and the committee went home to bed.

One would naturally suppose that these men who considered that justice rested on their shoulders would have taken the pains to send out in the direction Bowles had been seen going to make inquiries for him. But while they made it their business to dispense justice and gloried that there were no lawyers in the territory to delay them in doing so, no one of them seemed to consider it his business to hunt up the missing man. A week after they were bent on hanging Arbuckle they had so far cooled as to take very little interest in his case.

However, Mrs. Arbuckle placed her children in the care of a friend and, without announcing her intention, started out to hunt for the missing victim. She spent a good deal of time in her quest without immediate result. After being away from her little ones as long as she felt it practicable to leave them, she returned, bitterly disappointed.

Time passed. There was no trace of Bowles, but the thoughts of the vigilance committee had been turned into other channels and no movement was made to execute Arbuckle. Six months he remained in jail and would probably have remained till the crack of doom had not a court been organized to take the dispensation of justice out of the hands of a self constituted committee. When this occurred the prisoner's case was looked into, and since there was not sufficient evidence against him to warrant his trial he was discharged.

A few days later Bowles, accompanied by a wife, turned up, happy in being a bridegroom. He had been turned down by the bride, but she had relented and given him hope. He had gone for her, but being a modest man and fearing further disappointment had kept the reason for his going to himself.

The day after Bowles' return Arbuckle availed himself of the newly established court to bring suit for damages for false imprisonment against every one of the committee. Most of them had some means, and Arbuckle turned everything he had into money to pay his lawyers. Arbuckle won his suit and received a round sum from each and all who were able to pay. Those who were not able to pay he kept in jail two days for every one he had spent there himself.

Such was the ignominious end of the vigilance committee and the beginning of court law in a western city.

"Preacher To Procession" At Local Chautauqua

COLLIER'S WEEKLY, in a descriptive article [illegible] the work of Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, one of America's most noted preachers, once referred to him as "the preacher to the procession." That is a [illegible] description of this most extraordinary man and gives in a few words the reason for his phenomenal success. Brougher is, indeed, a preacher to the procession, a thorough democrat, a believer in the people. He was preaching in Portland, Ore., with conspicuous success when the call to the pastorate of the Baptist temple at Los Angeles found him. At the latter place he succeeded the beloved Bob Burdette, the Hawkeye humorist, whose failing health had necessitated his retirement from the pulpit.

It was a big job which Brougher faced, but he met it and conquered it. Los Angeles loved Burdette, and rightly so. His inimitable style had endeared him to his people, and it was thought no one could fill his place. But Brougher did it. He not only held what Burdette had won, but added new force and vigor to the temple's activities.

Now he is one of the established institutions of California. He is a state asset.

Slight of stature, but with a reserve of power that astounds his hearers, he typifies the militant modern church. He defies traditions, but he gets results. For years folks haven't considered a trip to the coast complete without hearing Brougher. Now he's coming to our own Chautauqua, and we'll all be the richer for his coming.

Youth.

Youth is not a time of life. It is not a matter of ripe cheeks, red lips and supple knees; it is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions. MR. ROOSEVELT'S "WEASEL WORDS"

Thruout his public career Theodore Roosevelt has been particularly happy in the coining of catch phrases. In the late unpleasantness, leading up to the betrayal of the Progressive cause at Chicago by its leaders into the hands of Penrose, Smoot, et al., he made much use of the expression, "Weasel Words."

That Theodore has been an adept thruout all his career in the use of weasel words, those who have followed him well know. Lest there be those who hold the opinion that the Colonel has never in all his career said one thing while meaning another, it might be well to refer to a few of his utterances.

In an address to the Progressive convention, August 6, 1912, Mr. Roosevelt said:

The two old parties are husks with no real soul within either, divided on artificial lines, boss-ridden and privilege-controlled, each a jumble of incongruous elements and neither daring to speak out wisely and fearlessly, * * * The recent Republican convention was not dominated by honest men. It was a convention wherein sat, alas! a majority of men who with sneering indifference to every principle or right, so acted as to bring to a shameful end a party which had been founded over half a century ago by men in whose souls burned the fire of lofty endeavor.

On the day following, August 7, 1912, in his speech accepting the Progressive nomination for president, he "weaseled" still further as follows:

I appreciate to the full the burden of responsibility you have put on me. I appreciate to the full that the trust you have placed in me can be met in only one way, and that is that I shall so act as to deserve the trust. With every particle of high purpose there is in me I pledge you my word to place every bit of ability, every bit of good sense I have at your disposal to carry out the principles to which you have dedicated yourselves.

On January 9, 1913, in a statement to the newspaper boys he gave mental birth to this little "weasel."

I strongly feel that we should no more enter into a combination with the Republican machine than with the Democratic machine.

Then in his Lincoln Day speech in New York, February 12, 1913, he produced as follows:

The Progressive party has come to stay. It will amalgamate with neither of the two old parties, both of which are boss-controlled and privilege-ridden.

Later in that year, October 3, 1913, he addressed the Progressives in this manner:

This movement will never go back, and whatever may betide in the future, of one thing the disciples of an easy opportunism may rest assured—I will never abandon the principles to which we Progressives have pledged ourselves, and I will never abandon the men and women who drew around me to battle for those principles. They and I stand with our faces toward the morning; we will never be sundered from one another, and we will never flinch from the fight to which we are pledged.

The Republican party is not coming back. The men in the old parties may as well make up their minds that the Progressive party is here to stay.

Mr. Roosevelt is now back in the standpat, reactionary Republican fold. He was driven out in 1912 by Messrs. Penrose, Root, Smoot, Barnes, et al. He was forced back in June, 1916, by the same standpat, reactionary bunch. As a "weasel worder" he is without peer. Listen to what he said about three weeks ago:

their ungrudging support of Mr. Hughes.

If you can beat that, Gentle Reader, in the career of any other man prominent in American public life we will esteem it a favor to have the facts set forth in these columns. But the Roosevelt "weasel words" have not been confined to matters of political strife and moment. His present attitude toward President Wilson is bitterly condemnatory because the latter did not go to war with Germany, or at least break off diplomatic relations, because of the violation of Belgium's neutrality.

In The Outlook for September 23, 1914, over his own signature, former President Roosevelt gave the following clear, concise and well considered argument in opposition to making an official protest by our government against the invasion and subjection of Belgium by Germany:

"It is eminently desirable that we should remain neutral and nothing but urgent need would warrant the breaking of our neutrality and taking sides one way or the other. Of course it would be folly to jump into the gulf ourselves to no good purpose; and very probably nothing we could have done would have helped Belgium. The sympathy of this country for the men, women and children of Belgium is very real; nevertheless this sympathy is compatible with a full acknowledgment of the unwisdom of our uttering a single word of official protest, unless we are prepared to make that protest effective, and only the clearest and most urgent national duty would ever justify us in departing from our rule of neutrality and noninterference."

In less than two years after making that statement The Perfect One reneges in this wise in a letter addressed to the late Progressive committee:

"Under the actual circumstances we could with only a minimum of risk have protested against the invasion of Belgium, a small, well-behaved nation, when she was exposed to the last extremity of outrage by the brutal violation of her neutral rights, this violation being itself a violation of The Hague convention to which we were a signatory power."

Can you beat it? Mr. Roosevelt refers repeatedly to The Hague convention to which the United States was a signatory power. He is also perfectly familiar with the fact, altho he has of recent months been particularly careful not to share his knowledge with the public, that it was expressly stipulated at this same Hague convention that in no case should this country be bound to depart from her settled policy of neutrality and non-interference in European affairs. He refers now with great unction to the "minimum risk" we would have run by butting into the Belgium business, but he knows now, as he clearly stated less than two years ago, that by so "butting in" we would have violated our own neutrality.

Verily, the phrase, "weasel words," is a happy one, but it has already arisen, time without number, to confuse and confound its shifty inventor.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

Just two-thirds of our Presidents have been lawyers. Grant and Taylor were classed as soldiers, Washington as a planter and soldier; Monroe as a statesman; Roosevelt as a publicist and Wilson as a scholar. No so-called business man has ever been nominated. No one will deny the high scholarship of both Wilson and Hughes and against neither can be raised a doubt of business integrity and social probity. The campaign will be the cleanest we have ever had from the personal standpoint of the candidates.

NOTABLE BIRTHDAYS TODAY

Rose Pastor Stokes, wife of J. G. Phelps Stokes, millionaire Socialist, and former cigar factory girl, is 27 years old today. Mrs. Stokes is one of the most conspicuous figures in American sociological work today, and her life story reads like a movie thriller. Daughter of Russian Jews, she was taken to London from Russia when but a child. Her widowed mother, sole support of the family, later married again and removed to America, settling in Cleveland. Rose was 12 years old when she went to work in a cigar factory at long hours and small pay. She managed to get an education at night schools and thru independent reading. Some verses she wrote attracted the attention of a Jewish paper in New York and she was given a place on its staff at $15 a week, which then seemed to her a fortune. Settlement work and union labor organizing at once attracted her, and in the course of it she met J. G. Phelps Stokes, Yale graduate and heir to millions, whose ideas were in thoro sympathy with hers. Their subsequent marriage was a sensation both in social and Socialistic circles, and both have since worked hand in hand for the cause of the Red Flag. Both write and lecture extensively in the interest of labor movements, and Mrs. Stokes figured prominently recently in the New York movement for teaching birth control to the women of the congested metropolitan districts.

Enjoying the Opera.

A well-dressed Spaniard, accompanied by six young and pretty Spanish girls, occupied seven seats in the orchestra circle at the Metropolitan opera house, New York, one night. Before the curtain rose, the entire group fell asleep, one after the other, and stayed asleep for two hours. It was a curious sight, and old operagoers said they never knew of the feat being equaled. The Spaniard paid $21 for the seven seats.

Good to Remember.

Every young man should remember that if his income is just a little above expenses every day, he will eventually become well off. If his receipts daily lack a little of meeting his expenditures, he will in time become a candidate for public favors at the poorhouse. Honest work at any calling and such economy as the case requires is honorable; while idleness and spend thrift habits are a disgrace to anyone young or old.—New Canaan (Conn.) Advertiser.

THE AUTO
By Walt Mason

The auto fills a long-felt want, for it enables us to jaunt far from the city streets, and we can breathe the country air, and hear the toil-worn farmer swear, and watch him husking beets. Before the auto made its bow, we seldom looked upon a cow, or saw a setting hen; and all we knew of babbling brooks, and sylvan dells, we learned from books, writ by some weary pen. The country seemed so far away! And when we'd toiled, the long, sad day, we could not journey there; we sighed in our dismal rooms, amid the city's smells and fumes, and longed for country air. The auto's brought the country near; and from our foreheads disappear the furrow and the frown; and we can take our wilting wives, and put some sunshine in their lives, by jogging out of town. Oh, we can seek the rural vales, and see the cattle wag their tails, and hear the roosters crow; and we can drink the country breeze, and wind our car around the trees, and chortle as we go. The auto is a boon to men; it's making old gents young again, it keeps us all enthused; it makes each day a holiday, it drives the cares of life away, when it is sanely used.

PEOPLES' FORUM

THIS STRAIGHTENS IT.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 15, 1916—Editor The Tribune:

In furtherance of "FEUDISTS CONSULT LOCAL ATTORNEY" which appeared in the paper under date of July 11th, I wish to straighten this matter out for you and have it appear as it should be, and I want this put in the paper at an early date.

The trouble started when my parents objected to Merrell Newcome keeping company with my sister, and of course, this is what started the trouble, and they would no allow him to come to her home and she left home on that account and went to Coshocton and when she was eighteen she married him and my parents and myself treated him fair, but there was an ill feeling on his part and, of course, that is where the trouble started. There is no ground for trouble whatever, regarding the Christmas dinner, for I went to Newcomes' home and stayed all night after Christmas. But last February he called my mother a liar and I wouldn't stand for that and I wrote a letter to him and told him when I come home he could call me that and before he was thru with it he did call me everything he could think of. But I never promised him a beating. So when I went down home on my vacation July 1st, my people told me just to let them alone, which I did, but my mother and myself went to Columbus last Saturday, July 8th, and my brother, Walter met us at the train, and on the way home before we got to where Merrell lives my brother and myself walked up the hill and I had no intentions of causing any trouble, but when we went past they were standing on the porch waiting for trouble and I told my mother to wait that I was afraid to walk past and they said something and I told Newcome to come up and he came running up to the road with a club in his hand and I told him not to hit me with it and he struck me twice before I touched him and I put him down and my mother came back and told me to let him up, which I did and only hit him once and his wife called for his brother-in-law and his father and his brother-in-law came with a rock in each hand and Merrell's sister and mother came down and I saw there were too many for me to handle and we all got in the rig to go and they held our horse and tried to hit me with clubs, and if there was any revolver or monkey-wrench in the crowd I am sure it was on their side of the house.

His brother-in-law is under peace-bond and was at the time this happened Saturday night, and his bondsmen are now liable for the bond.

As far as myself getting the worst of the deal, that is very absurd, for I haven't a scratch on me and only got a spraned wrist when Merrell hit me with the club the first time and I protected myself with my arm and broke the club and got the sprained wrist. I am sure I would have kept the peace, but they were standing out waiting for trouble and he acknowledged that he had the club all ready in the coal-house.

I have a trusted position here in Cleveland with the above company as bookkeeper and cannot afford to lose any time over this trouble, but I have taken it up with our attorney here and they advised me to write you and leave it to you to correct same in the paper over what appeared in the paper under date of July 11th.

Now I wish you to publish this in a concise way, but this is absolutely the truth and I positively will not stand for the piece that was in July 11th, against my character and it is up to The Coshocton Tribune to correct the statements, and I would like to know if possible who gave you the information to start with.

Please enter this in the paper as to what the trouble started over and correct same if necessary, but I will stand back of all the statements I have made in the letter.

Trusting this will stop at this, and that you will send me copy of paper and for the next four months, for which I will mail you check Monday, I remain,

Very respectfully yours,
V. S. HOLT.

Great Value of Fresh Air.

Roughly speaking, an increase in production of 10 per cent is not at all unusual in the average office, shop or warehouse, following the installation of a ventilation system. Fresh air, properly circulated, is an essential factor in successful factory management.

Perseverance Has Won.

In the past the nation has made many blunders and has been guilty of many shortcomings, and yet in the end we have always come out victorious, because we have refused to be daunted by blunders and defeats—have recognized them, but have persevered in spite of them.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Saved by His Horse's Fright.

When the hunter is hunted there is more excitement than fun. A traveler in southeastern Africa while hunting buffaloes suddenly came upon an enraged female elephant, which immediately charged him.

The horse had no show on the rocky ground, so the man dismounted and ran for shelter. As he gained a secure place he turned and saw the horse with his head up and fore feet planted firmly in the ground, as if carved from stone, while the elephant was smelling about with her trunk.

The horse acted as if paralyzed with fright and stood thus for fully five minutes then he gave a sudden jump, ran to a rocky ledge fifty feet away and again stood still. The elephant looked much puzzled at this action and flapped her ears meditatively.

Then she raised her head and began to trumpet at a furious rate. This was the chance the hunter had been waiting for and he fired. She stopped screaming, ran swiftly a hundred yards and fell dead.

Saved by His Hat.

John Hargrave, a negro, of 215 West Fortieth street, New York, owes his life to a thick brimmed straw hat he was wearing when some one shot at him. The bullet was fired while Hargrave was standing in a doorway in Lenox avenue. It struck the brim of his hat and twisted its way squarely through the brim and upward a little when the crown of the hat was reached.

Hargrave was taken by Dr. Summerville to Harlem hospital, where it was found that he was uninjured. The police do not know who fired the shot.

Bolt Kills Two, Spares One.

A bolt of lightning flashed through an open window and killed Henry Young, thirty, and Harry Leedy, twenty-eight, at work in a new house three miles east of Youngstown, O. Contractor Henry Hock was standing squarely between the two workmen, but the bolt forked so as to leave him entirely unhurt. John Quear, a third workman, was stunned.—New York Times.

Better Than Some.

Myer—"This paper tells of a spinster in Vermont who quarries stone like a man." Gyer—"Well, I suppose she thinks a stone man is better than none."

Still Doing That?

Writing love missives under a postage stamp suggests that some married couples could put 'em there and still have room for a postscript.—Washington Post.

Advice—Often Worth Heeding

—particularly when that advice refers to habits that directly affect one's health and comfort.

Thousands, annoyed by headaches, nervousness, biliousness, sleeplessness, etc.—often due to coffee drinking—have heeded a friendly suggestion to quit the coffee and use

Instant Postum

This pure food-drink is made of wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses. It has a rich, snappy flavor much like that of high-grade Java coffee, yet it contains no caffeine—the drug in coffee—nor other harmful element.

Freedom from caffeine gives Nature right of way to rebuild and revitalize the mental and physical forces.

There are two forms of Postum: The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum, a soluble form, is made in the cup by adding boiling water—ready instantly. Some prefer one, some the other; they are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

With most coffee-drinkers the change to Postum makes the start to better health and greater comfort.

"There's a Reason"

Grocers everywhere sell Postum.

PRISONERS OF WAR

In Former Times They Were Held as Virtual Slaves.

HAD TO EARN THEIR LIBERTY.

Then the System of Ransom Arose and With It Cruel Abuses and a Lawless Traffic In Captives—Rules That Govern Civilized Nations Today.

The prisoner of war in our day is the subject of an elaborate code of rules drawn up at meetings of The Hague peace conference. No property must be taken from him except arms and military equipment. He must not be kept in close confinement if that can be avoided, and if possible his parole must be accepted. He may be set to any work for which he is reasonably fitted—although officers are not bound to work—but he must be allowed a similar standard of life and credited with a similar scale of pay to that which obtains among the soldier-artificers of the conquering nation.

When set free the cost of his maintenance will be deducted and he will receive the balance in cash. He may be shot when trying to escape, but if caught alive he must not be punished except by curtailment of his liberty. These are a few of the many rules by which all civilized nations are now bound in regard to their prisoners of war.

Among savage men the destiny of a prisoner was to be eaten, massacred in cold blood or tortured for sport, until it dawned one day upon some primitive political economist that a live captive had labor value, and so arose the institution of slavery. Among free peoples like the Teutons, war prisoners were the only slaves allowed, and they might in time earn their freedom. This idea of commutation became the custom of medieval Europe, applied as "prize money" to ships and "ransom" to individuals. All officers could claim the right to offer a reasonable ransom, which went into the pocket of the captor. Sometimes officers would ransom a whole troop of their men.

Kings or great captains were ransomed by their nations. Richard the Lion Heart had a woeful time of it until England ransomed him from the Emperor Henry. King John of France, taken at Poitiers by the Black Prince, was held by England to ransom until the Duke of Anjou came as hostage while John went to raise the necessary cash. King David of Scotland, captured by Queen Eleanor, never persuaded the thrifty Scots to pay the whole of his ransom and became a dependent as a consequence.

In Froissart's engaging chronicles you may read how bands of mercenary troops quarreled with gallant and impetuous commanders, whose only object was the destruction of the enemy. The mercenaries were out to take prisoners and trade in the ransoms. This traffic gave rise to infinite abuses, including torture and all manner of dishonesty. Sir John Falstaff Shakespeare's Falstaff—was notorious for an extensive and unscrupulous traffic in ransoms. Yet it was not until during the eighteenth century wars that an agreement to end the custom was come to between the European commanders. Even then it lingered on in practice until the eve of the Napoleonic wars, when it was swept away for the newer idea of exchange of prisoners, rank for rank.

One great change brought about by the new system was that the prisoners became a state care and responsibility. Whether this change made for greater humaneness of treatment depended in part upon the conquering nation, but even more upon the individual governor or jailer. This may be seen in the varying accounts we have of the conditions of prisoners of war in England during the long struggle with Napoleon.

Lincolnshire's fens make good centers for a military compound. George Borrow, in "Lavengro," has given a terrible picture of the conditions at Norman's Cross prison, in the fen district. "Rations of carrion meat," he writes, "and bread from which I have seen the very hounds occasionally turn away were unworthy entertainment even for the most ruffian enemy, when helpless and captive."

In these prisons the inmates made various articles of commercial utility, such as straw plait, which were bought of them by dealers for a miserable sum, the proceeds procuring them a few trifling comforts and the luxury of tobacco, or affording the bribes necessary for the smuggling out of letters.

More tolerable was the fate of those settled on parole in such towns as Chesterfield, where they endured actual confinement under guard only at night, being free within certain bounds during the day. In many cases, as time went by, prisoners who had won the confidence of their guards became virtually free in all respects, starting workshops as cabinetmakers, etc., or teaching drawing, music or French to the children of the well to do. Their geniality and politeness soon made them very popular with the blunt and serious Derbyshire folk, and quite a number of them married and settled down in the Chesterfield district, where the traces of this settlement may be seen both in local names and in olive skins and other features.—Philadelphia Ledger.

It is hard to fail, but it is worse never to have tried to succeed. In this life we get nothing save by effort.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Will Plead Cause Of 40,000,000 Young Folks

DR. CHARLES S. MEDBURY.

"FORTY MILLION YOUNG FOLKS" will find a live advocate at the Chautauqua when Dr. Charles S. Medbury of Des Moines, Ia., chaplain of Drake university, comes to address us on that topic. Dr. Medbury is one of the great preachers of the middle west, a man of force and earnestness, a doer of deeds. For years he has held a pastorate in a college atmosphere, and the young folks have been his chief study and his most valued constituency. He will have a live message of helpfulness.

BIG PICNIC

Jacob McQueen, the "Soil Wizard"—will speak from a movable stand in the race track directly in front of the grandstand, and there will be free seats and silence so that all can hear the speakers with comfort and satisfaction of the promoters.

Advertising Campaign

This morning a systematic advertising campaign will start, and ten automobiles carrying several men each will go out thru the county. Tomorrow morning at least eighteen touring cars, each carrying an advertising captain and crew will take carefully mapped routes and it is their full intention to leave literature, invitations, etc., at every home within a radius twenty-five miles of Coshocton.

Everybody Invited

If any home is missed the people are to understand that it came thru accident and not intent. The Coshocton Retail Merchants association wants to show the people of this entire region that they are not mercenary. They simply ask for the chance to be hosts to everybody who will come—and everybody is asked, invited and urged to come.

Read their letter, a copy of which is intended for every home within 25 miles of Coshocton:

Dear Friends:

This is your invitation—

We are planning a monster event—we're going to endeavor to assemble at this gathering the largest Coshocton county family ever present at one time. We say family because in one way or another we are all bound together. We trust you will consider this a personal invitation to attend this reception. We are making great efforts to provide pleasant entertainment and nothing which will tend to your comfort and welfare has been neglected. We want you to join hands by accepting of our hospitality and help make August 3rd a gala day for all Coshocton county.

Here's our one idea in holding these annual picnics—appreciation and the desire to get better acquainted—that you may realize our sincere desire to merit your support. We sincerely hope you will accept this invitation and come in on that day—come early—business is suspended—all stores closed. The fair grounds will be the center of activities. Bring your lunches—we'll serve you with free coffee and free lemonade all day. We'll entertain you with band concerts and speakers on agriculture and commerce in the morning; with horse races, motorcycle races, ball games and band concerts in the afternoon. There will also be band concerts at night.

Now remember there will be no admission fee to the grounds; there will be no charge for seats at the grandstand. It's our picnic—yours and ours. Now won't you be with us? We want you personally—we'll show you a real pleasant time. Bring your entire family and friends—they are all welcome. Arrange to be here. We are working hard to arrange entertainment unusual.

Trusting we may have the pleasure of seeing you at the picnic, we are,

Yours truly,

The Coshocton Retail Merchant's Association of the Chamber of Commerce.

GAVIRA LEAVES MEXICO CITY

EL PASO, TEX., JULY 17.—General Gabriel Gavira, former commander of the government forces in Northern Chihuahua, has left Mexico City for the border to assume his old command in Juarez. Lieutenant Colonel Leon Buelon, acting commander of the garrison, announced today.

Goes To Juarez.

General Gavira will relieve General Francisco Gonzales, who left today for an inspection trip of the Carranza forces concentrated in the wake of the American expeditionary command.

He probably will be assigned, it was said, in charge of the Mexican field base at Villa Ahumada, 83 miles south of El Paso.

Colonel Buelon said Villa is surrounded in the bottoms of the Florido river in such a way as to make his escape from the de facto troops seem improbable.

OFFICERS CAN'T SOLICIT RATIONS

WASHINGTON, JULY 17.—General orders were issued by the war department today prohibiting army officers from taking part in any movement for the solicitation of funds to augment rations issued by the government to National Guardsmen in the federal service.

Such a movement, said in published reports to be on foot, was declared by department officials to be unnecessary and ill timed.

"The army ration furnished these troops," said today's order, "is ample for all purposes when properly used, and officers and enlisted men of the organized militia and National Guard in the service of the United States are not to participate in obtaining funds for such a purpose."

Remove Temptation.

Little Eugene, aged three years, who is just beginning to learn he should not eat cake before his meal, was seated at the evening meal when all of a sudden he saw a cake on the buffet and remarked, "Oh, my dosh, tover up dat cake 'till I eat my tatoes."

WOMAN AND WAR

A Western woman doctor declares that women are physically fit for service at the battle-front. Probably some exceptional women may be, but are not the majority prone to ailments which make even household cares a burden? Hence the necessity for that great remedy which during forty years has done more than any other to relieve such ailments and mitigate the sufferings of American Women—Lydia E. Noted Explorer To Talk At Coshocton Chautauqua

DR. G. WHITEFIELD RAY.

INTEREST in the great southern republics continues to be at high pitch, the world war having awakened thought concerning the future of America in a larger sense, the republics of South America being for the first time considered as a part of the greater America.

Because of this great interest Dr. G Whitefield Ray, the celebrated explorer, who spent fourteen years in exploration work in South America and who is perhaps the best posted man in America concerning certain conditions in our southern neighbors, has been prevailed upon to devote another season to Chautauqua work and he will be heard in a new illustrated lecture.

Leading educators around the Colt-Alber Chautauqua circuit last year united in saying that they got more information concerning South America from Dr Ray's lecture than from an entire course of reading, and he returns to the Chautauquas in response to an almost unanimous demand.

A BASEBALL SCOUT'S COMPLAINT

Hugh S. Fullerton has a short story in the August American Magazine in which a professional baseball scout laments the tricks of bush league managers. One of them says:

"If a scout don't keep his eyes open those bush managers are worse than a bunch of salted mine promoters, so I don't ask any questions, but goe around snooping after [illegible] one in Muskegon knows all about that [illegible] I had to hunt up the manager and take a chance of having [illegible] to [illegible] his gold brick. [illegible] 'When I asked about [illegible] 'Shush sh [illegible]' and I had to walk him around in front of the [illegible] the bartender can't hear before he'll say a word. Then he lean over and say, 'Shush [illegible] daddy [illegible] Hired [illegible] won a sockful [illegible] wouldn't even stay to upper [illegible] Shush sh shhh!'"

Mr. Blakley, Dayton, Ohio, says:

"I was suffering from a prolonged and stubborn case of indigestion, which neither doctors or druggists were able to even relieve to any great extent. A few doses of your remedy, however, not only relieved the distress, but drove it away entirely, without any recurrence in the last ten days. I am consequently very thankful. I certainly will not, in the future, be without them, as my trouble was of long standing."

Pepsinco (the perfect digestant) will save your stomach, no matter what the trouble.

And the Jackass.

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, and the jackass is a much flattered animal.—Judge.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat and take a glass of Salts to flush our Kidneys—Drink plenty water.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like a lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water, also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

A Discovery about your TEETH

Tonight, if you will closely examine your teeth after brushing them, you will make a surprising discovery.

Though you have been cleaning your teeth regularly, you will find an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. Your dentifrice has not been REALLY CLEANING!

Loss of teeth is usually due to one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or Decay—both of which ordinarily develop only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

CLEAN your teeth—REALLY CLEAN them! Senreco, a dental specialist's formula will do it. Senreco embodies specially prepared, soluble granules unusually effective in cleaning away food deposits. Moreover, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea.

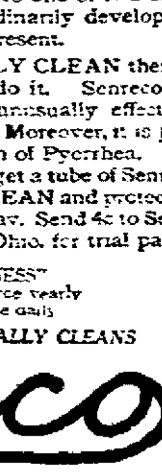

Go to your dealer today and get a tube of Senreco—keep your teeth REALLY CLEAN and protect yourself against Pyorrhea and decay. Send 4c to Senreco 304 Walnut St., Cincinnati, Ohio, for trial package.

Linoleum for Nurseries.

The prejudice which exists against the use of linoleum for nurseries is ill founded. Not only is it easy to wash, but, with the habit all babies possess of picking things from the floor and putting them into the mouth, the microbe-killing effect of this compound of linseed oil and cork is a useful safeguard. A bare wooden floor, especially of soft pine, is particularly harmful, as it provides a good breeding place for germs.

Optimistic Thought.

Lawyers' houses are built of fools' heads.

On Drinking Water.

A beauty specialist once said that whenever she saw a woman with a face resembling a dried apple she knew for a certainty that that woman did not drink enough water. The same cause which results in the drying of the apple, operates in the case of the dried skin—lack of water.

Many Here See German Submarine

A day or so ago two Coshocton men returned from Baltimore, Md., and told of seeing the German trade submarine Deutschland. A number of others saw the submarine last night and still others plan to see it today at the Pastime for a dime.

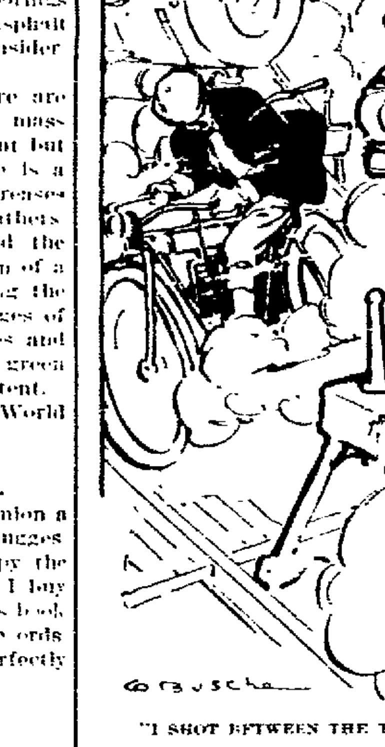

Manager C. G. Chacos, thru the courtesy of the Pathe News Film Co., received the Deutschland release direct from the developing room at the studio in New Jersey to be shown in this city Monday and Tuesday before it is sent back to be released thru the regular distributing office.

The film is remarkable for its news value. It shows the submarine being towed into port, its crew and captain, also one of Uncle Sam's latest model war submarines, the E-1; scenes on the Mexican border including the funeral procession of the U. S. troopers killed at Carrizal; the firing of the last salute in honor of Lieutenant Colonel Fitzgerald, secretary to Lord Kitchener, and the precautions being taken at New York in the fight against infantile paralysis.

COASTED BETWEEN ONCOMING TRAINS

Daring Motorcyclist Just Got Away With His Life.

John E. Hogge, president of the University of Illinois Motorcycle club, who made a trip across the United States with two companions, tells, in an article in an English motorcycle magazine, of a remarkable and thrilling dash he made between two trains while crossing one of the eastern states. Running a few hundred yards ahead of his companions, Hogge reached the crest of a hill which ran downward a distance of two miles at a steep grade. At the bottom two railroad tracks crossed the road, and then, beyond, the road went uphill again at an exceptionally steep grade. The only way of getting up the hill beyond the tracks without becoming stalled was to rush down the first hill, so he opened the throttle wide and made the start.

Before running halfway down the machine was going faster than the engine could drive it, so Hogge shut off the power and began to coast. When nearing the bottom the hand of the speedometer registered seventy-five miles an hour. We will let him tell the rest of the story.

"I was shooting along at this meteor like pace and was within 100 yards of the railroad tracks when out of the corner of my goggles I saw a passenger train coming down the first railroad track. I had scarcely seen the first train when there came a freight train going the other way on the farther track. For me to try to stop in the short distance I had before me would have been suicide. I do not know to this day whether I applied the brakes or just what I did, but I shot between the trains, missed the locomotive of the passenger train by not more than six inches and felt the freight train graze my rear tire as I shot out of the way."

City subscribers should insist on a receipt from the carrier.

TRINIDAD'S PUZZLE

Mystery of the Island's Curious Lake of Pitch.

HOLES FILL UP OVERNIGHT.

And Great Trenches More Than Three Feet Deep Will Be Obliterated In a Week—The Great Mass Is Solid, Yet In Constant but Slow Motion.

Though disappointing at first sight to people who have the crater of an active volcano in mind, yet the famous "pitch lake" of Trinidad is remarkable enough to satisfy most thoroughly those ere the visit has come to an end.

The lake is a level plain about a hundred acres or so in extent, surrounded by low hills and dotted here and there with bushes and trees. The surface is not a shimmering black, as might be supposed, but a dull, grayish brown color, intersected with pools of shining water. Altogether it is a very prosaic looking place, giving no hint of its real interest.

One can walk where one pleases over the surface of the asphalt without any fear of sinking in, for it is quite solid enough to bear one's weight. If you stand in one place for a little while it feels hot to the feet, just like an asphalted street on a very hot day.

Much of the time a fresh breeze blows, and one remembers with amusement the stories of the [illegible] writers who talked about stifling heat and oppressive atmosphere.

The digging of the asphalt is a simple operation. A mattock is the only tool required, and under its blows the pitch breaks readily. The negroes employed are very skilled in the work and break out lumps a couple of feet across, far too heavy for an ordinary man to carry.

Only a very small amount of the material gets broken into little pieces, so that scarcely any baskets are needed to carry the asphalt to the cars. A laborer simply lifts one or two lumps, puts them on his head, walks a few yards and drops them into the car.

The crude asphalt, as broken out, is somewhat brownish or earthy in color. It is usually quite wet and filled with many holes, like bubbles, measuring up to an inch or more in diameter.

The gang of barefooted workmen in one place may number thirty men, of whom half a dozen do the digging. They work on a space perhaps sixty feet long and forty feet wide, and in the course of a day they will dig down to a depth of three feet, or more in some places.

Go to that same spot next morning, and you will find it a little rough, [illegible] the lake. The [illegible] filled up [illegible] the course of a week [illegible] digging will be [illegible].

This does [illegible] fresh asphalt [illegible] from [illegible] very [illegible] surface [illegible] thing as "new" asphalt, by the way, for the transition from liquid petroleum to solid asphalt by nature's process involves a period of time that must be calculated in centuries.

The digging done in past years has caused the general level of the lake to sink several feet, so that it is not absolutely inexhaustible, as some people imagine. It is believed that fresh asphalt very slowly pushes itself upward into the lake from the subterranean depths, but how large a quantity is thus added annually has not been calculated.

Near the middle of the lake the material is less hard than elsewhere, and in a few places soft asphalt may be seen in small, irregular patches oozing up from below. This fresh asphalt is of about the consistency of putty and can be kneaded and pulled in the hands without soiling them greatly. In the main, however, the lake is solid asphalt.

No one knows the depths of this mysterious lake, the only information on the subject being the fact that long ago a boring was made to a depth of 135 feet without reaching the bottom. The "cores" of this and other borings show that in consistency the asphalt remains the same to a very considerable depth.

Curious as it may seem, there are many evidences that the entire mass comprising the lake is in constant but very slow motion. The surface is a series of great folds, and in the creases between these the rain water gathers. One writer has aptly compared the surface of the asphalt to the skin of a great elephant, the creases being the folds in his hide. Along the edges of the pools of water grass, bushes and small trees take root, forming green "islands" of greater or less extent.—Victor Pitt-Kethley in Wide World Magazine.

An Aid to Canned Music.

In the Woman's Home Companion a writer makes the following suggestions: "Into a blank book I copy the words of songs and operas that I buy for my phonograph and hand this book to my friends as I play the records. Understanding the words perfectly adds much to their pleasure."

Days That Count.

The course of life is a thousand trifles, then some crisis; nothing but green leaves under common sun and shadow, and then a storm or a rare June day. And far more than the storm or the perfect day the common sun and common shadow do to make the autumn rich. It is the "every days" that count. They must be made to tell, or the years have failed.—William C. Gannett.

Work and Leisure.

There is room enough in human life to crowd almost every art and science in it. If we pass "no day without a line" visit no place without the company of a book, we may with ease fill libraries or empty them [illegible]. The more we do, the more we can do; the more busy we are, the more leisure we have.—Hazlitt.

Merely a Matter of Choice.

"Bobby," said the teacher sternly, "do you know that you have broken the eighth commandment by stealing James' apple?" "Well," explained Bobby, "I thought I might just as well break the eighth and have the apple as to break the tenth and only covet it."

Says All Men Not Born Equal

Does a man have an unstable nervous condition because he drinks or does he drink because he has an unstable nervous condition?" began Prof. William M. Barrows of the department of Zoology of the Ohio State University, recently in an address before the Biological Club of the University, on "Heredity and Environment." Professor Barrows went on to show that the same question might be applied to the slums, and pointed out the important part played by heredity in the life of the individual.

"Experiments," he said, "have proved that if two identical at birth are placed, one in a good environment and the other in a poor environment, at the end of a period of 40 or 50 years there will be little difference between them. This shows that heredity plays a vastly more important part in the life of man than does environment. Mental traits are inherited, as well as criminality, which may permeate a whole family."

"It is not wrong?" he questioned "for teachers to inform boy pupils that they may be president some day, when it is an established fact that it may be impossible for those not endowed with the necessary executive ability or inclination to become such? Men are not born equal, for due to heredity one may have much greater talents than another."

The Greatest Love.

No language can express the power and beauty and heroism and majesty of a mother's love. It shrinks not where man cowers, and grows stronger where man faints, and over the wastes of worldly fortune sends the radiance of quenchless fidelity like a star in heaven.—E. H. Chapin.

Federals Go To Dennison

The Feds will go to Dennison Saturday to do battle with the P. H. A. C. club at that city. On Sunday the same team will be the Feds opponents at the Red Sea.

Manager Bries stated last night that the P. H. A. C.'s have the strongest team in years. They defeated the New Phila aggregation Sunday by a score of 27 to 5 and are looking for more blood Saturday and Sunday. Bries says the Feds will hustle some if they get the long end of the score but believes his bunch will turn the trick.
